Inventing Diagnoses to Cover Up Vaccine Injury — a Con as Old as Vaccination Itself

People injured by COVID-19 vaccines may not realize it, but the pretense that post-vaccination injuries and deaths are just "sad coincidences" — far from being unique to the pandemic jabs — is a trick as old as vaccination itself.

So-called "fact-checkers" are having to work double-time to come up with ways to deny the undeniable fact that COVID-19 vaccines are causing injuries and deaths on a massive scale.

The shot pushers and their media enablers have taken cover-up tactics to absurd new heights by, for example, chalking up the rash of fatal heart attacks and overnight deaths in athletes and young adults to a fluky condition referred to variously as "sudden adult death syndrome" or "sudden arrhythmic death syndrome" (SADS).

What the COVID-19 vaccine-injured do not necessarily recognize, however, is the pretense that post-vaccination injuries and deaths are just "sad coincidences" — far from being unique to the pandemic jabs — is a trick as old as vaccination itself.

Facilitated by well-honed semantic and statistical flimflam, public health officials' core strategy for perpetuating their fiction is to profess innocence — making unabashedly unsubstantiated pronouncements about vaccine safety, on the one hand, while on the other hand, declaring themselves "baffled" by ailments that emerge in the aftermath of a given vaccine's rollout.

From 1899 to 2022 — has anything changed?

In an astonishingly frank and prescient book, "The Fallacy of Vaccination," published in 1899, Dr. Alexander Wilder called attention to the "growing conviction" among "profounder thinkers and observers" that vaccination was not only "utterly useless as a preventive" but "actually the means of disseminating disease afresh where it is performed."

Wilder noted, "whenever a vaccinator or corps of vaccinators set out upon a vaccinating crusade, there follows very generally a number of deaths from … maladies which have been induced by the operation. …"

Wilder also blew the whistle on the suppression and concealment of vaccine adverse events and deaths, describing a fellow physician's urging of his "professional brethren to be slow to publish fatal cases of small-pox after vaccination" and outlining other shenanigans that sound all too familiar today:

> "Occasionally … a death by vaccination is published, and immediately the effort is put forth assiduously to make it to be believed that it was from some other cause. The statistics of small-pox, purporting to distinguish between vaccinated and unvaccinated persons, are too often not quite trustworthy. Many persons who have been vaccinated are falsely reported as unvaccinated.
> "Even when death occurs as the result of vaccination, the truth is concealed and the case represented as scarlet fever, measles, erysipelas [bacterial skin infection], or some 'masked' disease, in order to prevent too close questioning."

The intentionality of the suppression seemed obvious to Wilder, who added, "Further argument is met by stolid silence, and by an apparent concert of purpose to exclude carefully all discussion of the matter from medical and public journals, and to denounce all who object."

Similar sleight-of-hand was on full display during the recent Novavax-focused meeting of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices.

In the ably summarized live-blog account by internist Dr. Meryl Nass — a member of the Children's Health Defense scientific advisory committee — Nass noted CDC's faking of COVID-19 data to hide the far-greater hospitalization and death rates among the COVID-19-vaccinated as compared to the unvaccinated.

Conveniently for the CDC, Nass noted, the only charts not "up to date by the day" were those presenting vaccination status versus outcome.

However, despite CDC's "mumbo jumbo," Nass pointed out, the agency was unable to hide the higher rate of myocarditis in mRNA-vaccinated males within a week of dose two — 75.9 times higher for 16- to 17-year-olds and 38.9 times higher in 18- to 24-year-olds.

Polio: another example of 'mumbo jumbo'

With New York State recently reporting a case of "vaccine-derived polio," and U.K. scientists declaring a "national incident" after allegedly finding "genetic sequences" of poliovirus in London sewage water, it appears public health authorities might be preparing to resurrect polio as the bogeyman du jour.

At first blush, the concession that nearly all modern paralytic polio cases are iatrogenically (medically) caused by the oral polio vaccine — shared by no less than the World Health Organization and CDC — seems unexpectedly and refreshingly candid.

However, public health authorities have no intention of conceding that the official story of poliomyelitis (where "myelitis" refers to spinal cord inflammation) is otherwise full of more holes than Swiss cheese.

There is, and always was, ample evidence to suggest that poisoning — whether by lead arsenate, DDT, or later, the toxic ingredients in polio vaccines themselves — is the most credible explanation for the paralytic symptoms and deaths that were labeled as "polio."

In fact, early public health luminary Bernard Greenberg, founding chair of the biostatistics department at the University of North Carolina School of Public Health, testified before Congress that polio vaccination had "actually increased incidents of polio" and that "misuse of statistical methods had made the opposite seem true."

Greenberg was referring to a change in the diagnostic criteria for "paralytic poliomyelitis." implemented in the mid-1950s, which began to require at least 60 days of paralytic symptoms to earn the diagnosis, versus previously, just 24 hours of such symptoms.

As Greenberg did not hesitate to point out, the victory claimed by the first polio vaccines, which began to be administered around the same time, was entirely undeserved.

In the present day, "acute flaccid paralysis" and "acute flaccid myelitis," which have a clinical picture virtually identical to polio, are the diagnoses of choice for childhood paralysis cropping up all over the world, including in the U.S.

In countries like India, where tens of thousands of children have developed acute flaccid paralysis, doctors explicitly linked the condition to oral polio vaccination. But decades of published reports also associate paralysis with other childhood vaccines, such as pertussis-containing and aluminum-containing vaccines.

In fact, historical reports of spinal cord inflammation, including not just poliomyelitis but other forms of myelitis, track closely with pediatric vaccination trends, and with the concurrent rise in the practice of pediatric injection.

Earlier generations of doctors even described polio cases that followed pediatric injections as "provocation paralysis," while more recent generations of clinicians have noted the similarity between "polio" and injection injuries dubbed "traumatic neuritis."

On the current vaccine schedule for American children, clinical trial or post-marketing data link 17 different vaccines to "myelitis," "encephalomyelitis," "acute disseminated encephalomyelitis" and/or "transverse myelitis."

Transverse myelitis also has been making an appearance with COVID-19 vaccines.

Sidestepping the obvious explanation

Since the "polio" era, there are many other examples of diagnoses intended to obfuscate rather than elucidate vaccination as a cause of illness and death — and gaslight sufferers.

These include autism spectrum disorder (ASD) and sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS).

Among the environmental causes put forth as plausible triggers for the neuroimmune disorders labeled as "ASD," heavy metal poisoning — principally via vaccination — is one of the most consistent contenders.

Meticulous landmark papers published in 2004 and 2012 demonstrated strong parallels between the brain effects of mercury intoxication and ASD brain pathology. Later papers furnished similar evidence with respect to aluminum.

As for SIDS, the diagnosis first entered into vogue around the same time (in the early 1970s) that the vaccine load for children in the U.S. doubled.

Although the 1970s vaccine schedule appears restrained by today's immoderate standards, young children of that decade not only began receiving 13 vaccines instead of seven, but also went from mostly receiving one shot at a time to often getting two at once, including five one-two punches of diphtheria-tetanus-pertussis (DTP) and oral polio vaccine — both subsequently taken off the U.S. market due to their troublesome adverse event profile.

SIDS deaths, which by definition affect "seemingly normal, healthy infants," and toddler deaths categorized as "sudden unexplained deaths in childhood" typically occur "in close temporal association following vaccination," with nine of 10 SIDS deaths occurring around the same time as two- and four-month "well-baby" visits.

Nevertheless, scientists continue to state that the unpredictable deaths "elude … scientific understanding."

The deception continues

Sadly, vaccine-injured individuals often are enlisted in the artifice.

Desperate for help, they discover they cannot gain access to the halls of medicine unless they self-censor any discussion of vaccination as the source of their health problems and instead acquiesce to "idiopathic" or "genetic" explanations, or punt to some of the more than 70,000 codes in the International Classification of Diseases-10 (ICD-10) — while eschewing the tiny handful of codes pertaining to "adverse effect of vaccines and biological substances."

A new ICD code relevant to "new diseases of uncertain etiology or emergency use" was designated for "COVID-19 vaccines causing adverse effects in therapeutic use, unspecified." However, it remains to be seen whether any health professionals will be brave enough to use it.

Meanwhile, as The Exposé satirically reported on July 24, "It feels like we can't go a single week without hearing about the re-emergence, or emergence of a disease or ailment" — including a "mysterious" outbreak of hepatitis among children, the SADS phenomenon, monkeypox and, of course, polio.

All of these outbreaks, the journalists noted, "are 'coincidentally' occurring after millions of people worldwide have been injected with an experimental mRNA COVID-19 vaccine."

As the recent New York and U.K. reports of vaccine-induced polio illustrate, these threats, whether real or imagined, are likely to mobilize further hostility toward the unvaccinated — including the New York communities fiercely ostracized a few years ago for rejecting measles vaccines for religious reasons.

In addition, the specter of a polio resurgence will be used to harangue the growing number of parents who, for whatever reason, have been increasingly deferring vaccination for their children.

In short, it would be naive to expect any breakthroughs in truth-telling from official corners any time soon.

The one positive outcome of this fiasco is number of people who are now skeptical of all vaccines.

Yes . Many more people around the globe are beginning to question. This is my hope and prayer that its the beginning of the end for this fraud. Until 2 years ago I didnt realise how far this went. Its truly horrific. They have been making people sick to profit off them for decades.

Except for Gato Malo on substack. He's checked the numbers twice and trusts the MMR vaxx, but not the covid shots. Trying diligently to separate himself from the tin foil hat wearing anti-vaxxers, but we're all lumped in together. RFK jr used to say he was for "safer vaccines.", but he was still called an anti-vaxxer in the lede. Just say No to mandatory inoculations and you're still one of us.

The only numbers I trust at all are those of the comparisons of comparable populations of unvaxxed and vaxxed of the same ages and baseline health characteristics. Which either tend to be censored or laundered. Some good examples are the age-stratified COVID jabs data from the UK, of which the key points are well obscured; and the clinical findings of Dr. Thomas, which was censored, and shows striking differences in the autism rates of fully unvaxxed kids from concurrent national averages and vaxxed kids within the practice.

Long story short, if vaccines were so safe and effective, there would be a helluva lot more transparency and readily available safety data. The automated vaccine injury reporting system that has been available since around 2010 would be implemented, and we'd be able to access all such stats. But it's not, what data there is in the vaccine safety database is well hidden, and we only see it in heavily laundered studies that are carefully crafted to protect the narrative.

But these COVID jabs have proven so hazardous and ineffective that the laundering efforts are becoming increasingly to no avail, and they have to just bury or burn the dirty laundry.

Yup - I had leg paralysis after my inoculation in 1963-4. Total paralysis in one leg for 2 months, and little control over the other. Remember how excited the doctor was when my big toe finally twitched... how he got out his little book and started counting the days. Missed months of school and took a year or more to recover.... but it couldn't be polio because I had been vaccinated.

We need to take health and medicine back from Rockefeller! That's where it all went wrong. He destroyed natural, holistic medicine for a much more profitable petroleum based medicines. After all, you can't patent anything naturally found in nature. Today, they poison us with foods, water, and products, then poison us again with their medicines.
A cured person is lost revenue. They keep us sick and weak on purpose.

Absolutely right. A healthy person is not profitable, so keeping the masses sick and unhealthy is the goal = $$$ 😡. One of the best things anyone can do is go against the Rockefeller paradigm and stay as healthy as possible ... that's my goal every day.

Natural and holistic medicine is still available. It is all I have used for 30 years. Clean food, water and all kinds of products are to. If you are taking any pharmaceuticals I have to ask why? Nobody can keep you sick unless you let them. I hope you continue to do more research. there is much to learn.

I haven't read the full article but it reminds me of the books 'dissolving illusions' and 'virus mania'. The present situation is deeply anchored in the past and therefore to get out of this mess requires more than critics. I think that violence is on the brink. What is happening now has to be stopped, right now. On its own it is a bit more complex as math, morality, ethics, politics, business, media are intertwined and above all the idea of effectiveness of vaccination has settled in the mind; thanks to the politicians and media. The idea of saving humanity for illnesses while making huge profits also has left deep traces in the mind

The irony is this latest and worst lot of jabs might do the work itself, taking out so many of the believers that none of the true believers who follow the recommendations will remain.

sadly, I've only come across one person who has been willing to 'rethink' their rush to get the jab. and they will not question the childhood jabs, only the covid jabs. but many believe we will eventually reach a 'critical mass' of skeptics. personally, I am not holding my breath for that.

I urge anyone reading this to seriously question your doctors on all issues. Deadly harmful medications are prescribed by rote even though there are hundreds of thousands of wrongful death suits filed against those medications. Doctors have been programmed by money grubbing entities to practice a kind of "turn-em-and-burn-em" mentality to get patients in and out of their offices or hospitals ASAP. Much like waiters in a restaurant. If you opt out of surgery or some other expensive procedure they make very little money. Recently I was pressured by a cardiologist to have open heart surgery (which I did not need). His office kept pestering me over and over with unwanted phone calls though I had declined the surgery over and over. To end the harassments I had to get rude and say what part of the word NO don't you understand. I was told in parting my condition would not improve, would get worse and kill me. I am fully recovered via natural methods and prayer to God. The healing was due to God. Buyer beware. These people are nuts. God Bless.

I was sick many years ago with a intestinal bacterial infection. I'm 5=5 and got down to 70 lbs. After months of mis diagnoses and useless drugs, i was seen by a PA. Actually thru it all I never saw an MD! She started in on all these test I needed, was told I was way behind on vaccinations and needed to be up to date and so much BS including a needed mammogram. HUH? I keep saying NO, NO,NO and she stood there, tapping her foot impatiently and ask me what I wanted. I told her I wanted to be treated for the problem I came in with. This Einstein told me if I didn't do as she said I would be dead in a month. Did she think she was God? I think that was over 30 years ago. I ditched the witch and found a holistic Dr. and was improving in a couple of weeks. I have ZERO trust in anything "medical" these days. When Dr. Mercola says "Take charge of your own health" he knows what he is talking about.

Congress and FDA are corrupted and controlled by billionaires, bankers, and corporate lobbyists representing the biggest capitalist (private ownership of the means of production, production for profit, exploitation of wage labor, etc.) enterprises on the planet. I honestly have no clue how you people conclude these social relations, political dynamics, and economic activities to be in any way related to "communism", which is socialized production under the collective ownership of the workers themselves in order to meet human needs. You seem to have swallowed the anti-communist propaganda that was produced by the very same capitalist interests and sources that you claim to oppose and mistrust about everything else.

Exactly! In addition, what the Globocap (CJ Hopkins' apt term) cabal is doing is far WORSE than anything communism or socialism ever attempted. They never attempted democide! In general, the most corrupt party is whatever party is in power. Right now that's the Democrats. So, contemporary liberalism (having little to do with traditional liberalism) is the tip of the spear ideology. When it comes to Globocap elites there is no right or left, no conservative or liberal (that is just branding), there's just power. Just because we are bombarded 24/7 with "liberal" propaganda, does not mean that right wing propaganda does not serve the same Globalist agenda.

Marco Polio, Polio, Polio is a medical blind man's bluff in murky waters. It's not just injectors who gaslight VAE survivors. When a fit, forty year old firefighter dropped dead his family and friends suggested it was "Previously Undiagnosed Congenital Heart Disease." Surely, he must have had thorough medical examinations in his career. Another forty year old's Sudden Unexplained Death was due to his "poor health", not his recent vaxxes. Two lifelong partners in their 70's died within months of each other and recommended boosters. Final conclusion, they were "old." All in one small town, but denial is infused into the shots.

I remember before beginning my nurse training course many years ago I was given several vaccinations 3 or 4 at the one time. That evening I experienced high temp, generally unwell and was agitated, I knew it was from my vaccinations and I continued to feel unwell for a few days before recovering. I was a normal sized adult, how do we justifying giving the number of injections which would be more than double that amount to a tiny baby? This horrific practice has been normalised, I don't care what any doctor or scientist spouts about this being normal, it is not and needs to be changed.

Don't forget meningitis.
I was diagnosed with meningitis when I was 5 years old after a childhood vx.
When I asked how I contracted meningitis, they would always say to me,
"They don't know how, you just do."
Took me 40 years to put two and two together.
I've had issues stemming from my hospitalization my entire life.
I scoff when I see promotion of a meningitis vxxne.
I've also stopped vxxinating my dogs and cats.
I've noticed health improvements since I stopped.
Nothing but poison.
I've also read that there's evidence that rabies does not really exist.
If this is true, what are they injecting your pets with?

My babysitter came over one day to watch the kids. She had just been to the "doctor's" for a meningitis shot.
She then came down with a sore arm and neck. Right after that I came down a month long thing, where I was bed ridden and couldn't sit up. Extreme pain in the back of my head.
Another time this guy I was working with said he and his wife had just been to the "doctor's" and got their shingles shots. Then they didn't feel so good...so they went back to the doctors and he then gave them a flu shot. We worked together closely over that weekend. And then I came down with a very strange thing-almost paralytic. A strange pain in my lower spine with shooting pain running into my legs. Couldn't walk and in bed for a month. It slowly went away.
After I was up again, I contacted the guy that had the shots, and he said he also had been sick the past month with a strange nerve thing running through different parts of his body.
THEY ARE MAKING US ALL SICK!

Completely agree. Esp since shingles or varicella vaccines are still live virus vaccines. That they know make recently vaccinated shedders, and capable of spreading and infecting others. Yet they continue to allow recently vaxxed guinea pigs to parade around in general population knowing the "immunocompromised people" were all vaccinating for, can be exposed and are more susceptible to shedding and getting sick. Esp people who have suffered a vaccine injury, adverse effects in the past, they're more vulnerable to have one again bc of how it hardwires your immune system and destroys it's typical functioning

I've seen testimonials from those with serious adverse events after Covid shot. Some said the doctor told them it is in their head. Some were criticized if they thought the Covid shot caused the event.

There is a proposed law in the CA legislature, about punishing doctors if they tell the truth about Covid shots. If it passes, a doctor will be subject to discipline or even lose their license to practice medicine, if they don't parrot the official narrative- Safe and Effective.

Safe and Effective is a marketing slogan, nothing more.

By the time the shots were rolled out, i was aware of some of the adverse events associated with the shots. I decided not to take the shot.

After a while, it became known that VAERS was off the charts. The standard response has been, it's not proven, so ignore it. But the numbers are wildly out of line with any other injection. Apparently, the CDC recently admitted they are not looking for safety signals in the VAERS data. If so, they don't really care if people are being injured by the shots, thus don't really care about disease control or public health. All they care about is a mass vaccination agenda- a needle in every arm.

Admitted mass vaccine injuries will cause people to forgo boosters, so the public health agency incentive, is to deny as many injuries as possible.

My search on Yandex (a Russian search engine that finds websites the others bury or ignore) found an example of True Believers being lumped in with anti-vaxxers if they deviate from the "perfectly safe and effective" myth. He commented on the William Thompson/Brian Hooker CDC autism fraud leak and became one of us, unwillingly, pitching a fit to no avail.

"During the internet debate, I clearly identified myself as

Pro-vaccine – I pointed out that both of my sons are fully vaccinated, and that, as an expert in bioinformatics and biostatistics, I have grave concerns due to Thompson's allegations. I pointed out that I was pro-vaccine, I just want the vaccine safety research to be scrutinized, and, if necessary, redone. If the CDC vaccine safety research team committed scientific misconduct on vaccine safety trials, the pressing question is :How many, and which vaccines on the pediatric schedule are, in fact, safe?

The tactics used to minimize and dismiss my position by this particular contingent of perhaps well-meaning Pro-Vaccination people are particular ad-hominem, have thus far included: Stating that, in spite of what I say, I am against vaccines (again, 100% Pro-Vaccine here, sorry.)

Claiming that I must be some sort of Creationist (Evolutionary Biologist here)."

If the accumulative longterm health effects of multiple Vaccine administration in early infancy and childhood were positive . . . Then 'The Vaccine Injury Table' used to adjudicate on potential Vaccine related cases of Injury would not have to use very deliberate 'Exclusionary Criteria' asxset out in this Table. They deliberately exclude from 'Compensation' any infant/child or adult with an already recognised Disease Process going on in the body. Cancer Patients, Persons with Genetically associated conditions like Fragile X, Cystic Fibrosis etc, and infants presenting with the residual effects of Birth related trauma/injuries.
Great System, remove the percentage of the collective population most at risk of associated injury. The 'Contraindicated' sector. May be worth pushing for the immediate introduction of "ScreeningB4Vaccines" for "Contraindication" prior to commencement. . .
Using the Catagory of persons already deliberately "Excluded".
One Very Obvious Solution Perhaps! . . .
FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Reading these comments gives me some faith restored in humanity, for it's apparent, others have researched the fallacy that is the polio epidemic, and all vaccine dogma, lies, greed, corruption, and how vaccines are the vectors by which they induce death and.chronic debilitating illnesses, that create lifelong pharma customers forever taking drugs that they need indefinitely and then more drugs to treat the side effects of the original drugs. It's truly despicable how feeble minded, dumbed down, and easily fooled.a majority of people have become. How they lack critical thinking, ration, reason, or the ability to think for themselves.. however reading most of the comments here made me.feel.like I'm not alone, I'm not crazy for having done this research objectively and come to the same.conclusions as.most of you. That vaccines and viruses have always been a scam, a misrepresentation of "disease" and a "cure" that manifests more.sickness and chronic illness than the alleged "disease" it's "preventing". Keep speaking the truth to any and all who will listen and pointing out their ignorance,blind allegiance and hypocrisy, most will fall on deaf ears, but those still capable of original thought, might hear you, and spread the message out to others.
